

You should reconsider the requirements regarding insulin prefilled pens. They are far more convenient and the ease of use would likely result in better patient compliance and better management of their condition and reduced costs in the long run not paying for care associated with complications from poorly managed diabetes.

Thank you.